Mr. Robert Beverly HICKORY GROVE, Prince William co.

May 12, 1890 To the Editor of the Alexandria Gazette:

Your paper of the 8th instant contains a report of a speach by Mr. Robert Beverley, of Fauquier, addressed to the farmers of King George county, and gives some ex tracts by which we can judge of its general tenor. Mr. Beverley's sentiments are repu diated by some of the members of the Farmere' Alliance, who say that he only has the right to speaz for himself; but there is good rea on to believe that he is a fair exponent of the principles and purposes of the leaders of that organization and speaks by the card. If, by his candor or recklessness, he has prematurely revealed the secrets of the or-der and stripped the veil from the visage of the false prophet of good times and good things and shown it in its native hideoneners to the common gaze, he deserves the thanks of his fallow citizens,

Before the war Mr. Beverley was an "iron bound whig and advocated high tariff," and presumably all the other obnoxious measures for which that party contended, but which it had virtually abandoned before the time designated. At the close of the war he looked around for a change of base and cast in his lot with the democratic party, as the least of two evils. That was the time Mr. Baverley made a big mis take. The fair inference is that he never fully and cardially adopted democratic principals and usages, and he must often have cast a longing eye upon the class legislation and general paternslism of the republican party. The maxim that the people should support the government, but that the government is not bound to support the people, must be perfectly abhorent to him.

Some sections of the country have been inconsisted by death, at her country have been inconsisted by death, at her country have been inconsisted by death.

impoverished by drouth, other sections by floods, cyclones, fires, &c. For all this the governments, both State and federal, are to blame, and therefore Mr. Bever'ey and the people will stand it no longer, but will rise in their might and main and revolutionize matters, whether ruin follows in their track or not. He urged the people to ignore party and look to their own interests. It is well and look to their own interests. It is well that we should have this plain and explicit statement. The people will take heed. Forewarned is forearmed. The large majority of Virginia farmers are democrats. They believe in the necessity of the ascendancy of democratic principles and measures for the preservetion of our relities and for the preservation of our political and civil institutions, as well as our business in-terests, and they have faith in the final victory. They will follow no blind leaders who themselves feel and express a doubt whether ruin will or will not follow in the track they have marked out. They believe that a patient continuance in well doing (voting) the only hope for them. They know that Steam Flooring & Planing Mill the democratic party is not to contain that evil times that have fallen upon us; that evil times that have fallen upon us; that for no day or hour since 1861, has that party had the power to right the wrongs that have ruled and aimost ruled us; that the republican party has wrested the powers of the national government from their original and legitimate functions, and perverted them to its own base and mercenary nees; that the overthrow of that party is the prerequisite to any real and permanent change for the better. They also prefer open enemies to treather that presented friends. He who is not for us, heart and soul, in this conflict for all that freemen should hold dear, is against us. We will not sell our political integrity for a few paltry dollars, the cheese parings of the Farmers' Alliance, or barter our birthright and hopes of the future for a sordid mess of pot-JOHN S.
